

Last week INAWS

Top Ten Mistakes in Managing Cloud Costs

(Number four will blow your feet off!)

I'm Corey Quinn!

.....

Corey is the Chief Cloud Economist at The Duckbill Group. Corey's unique brand of snark combines with a deep understanding of AWS's offerings, unlocking a level of insight that's both penetrating and hilarious. He lives in San Francisco with his spouse and daughter.

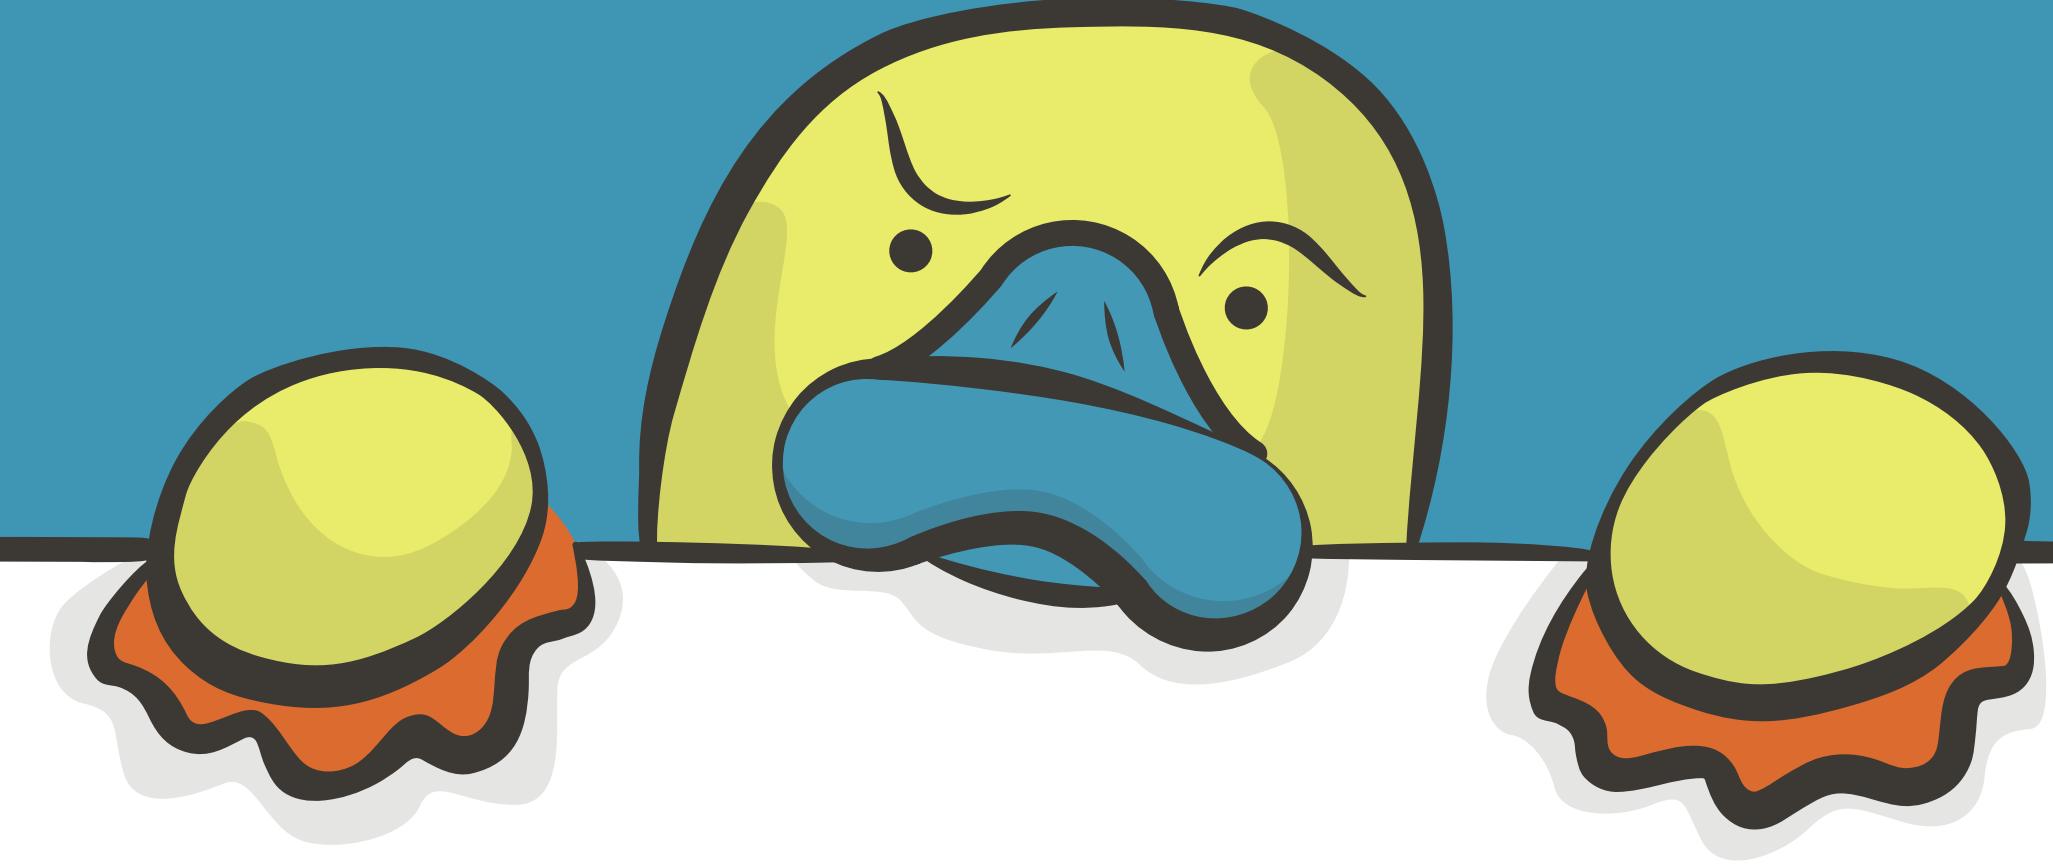

Most Cost Savings Talks

Take notes; we won't be revisiting these

.....

- ❖ Buy RIs or Savings Plans
- ❖ Delete EBS Snapshots
- ❖ Turn That Shit Off
- ❖ Delete failed multipart upload artifacts
- ❖ Upgrade old instances
- ❖ Kidnap your Account Manager's Kids
- ❖ S3 Lifecycle Policies
- ❖ Remove unattached EBS volumes
- ❖ Use Spot Fleets if your workloads let you
- ❖ Release unused EIPs

It's less "we'll bring you new leads," more "we won't make your customers replace you with other companies we like better instead."

1. Kubernetes

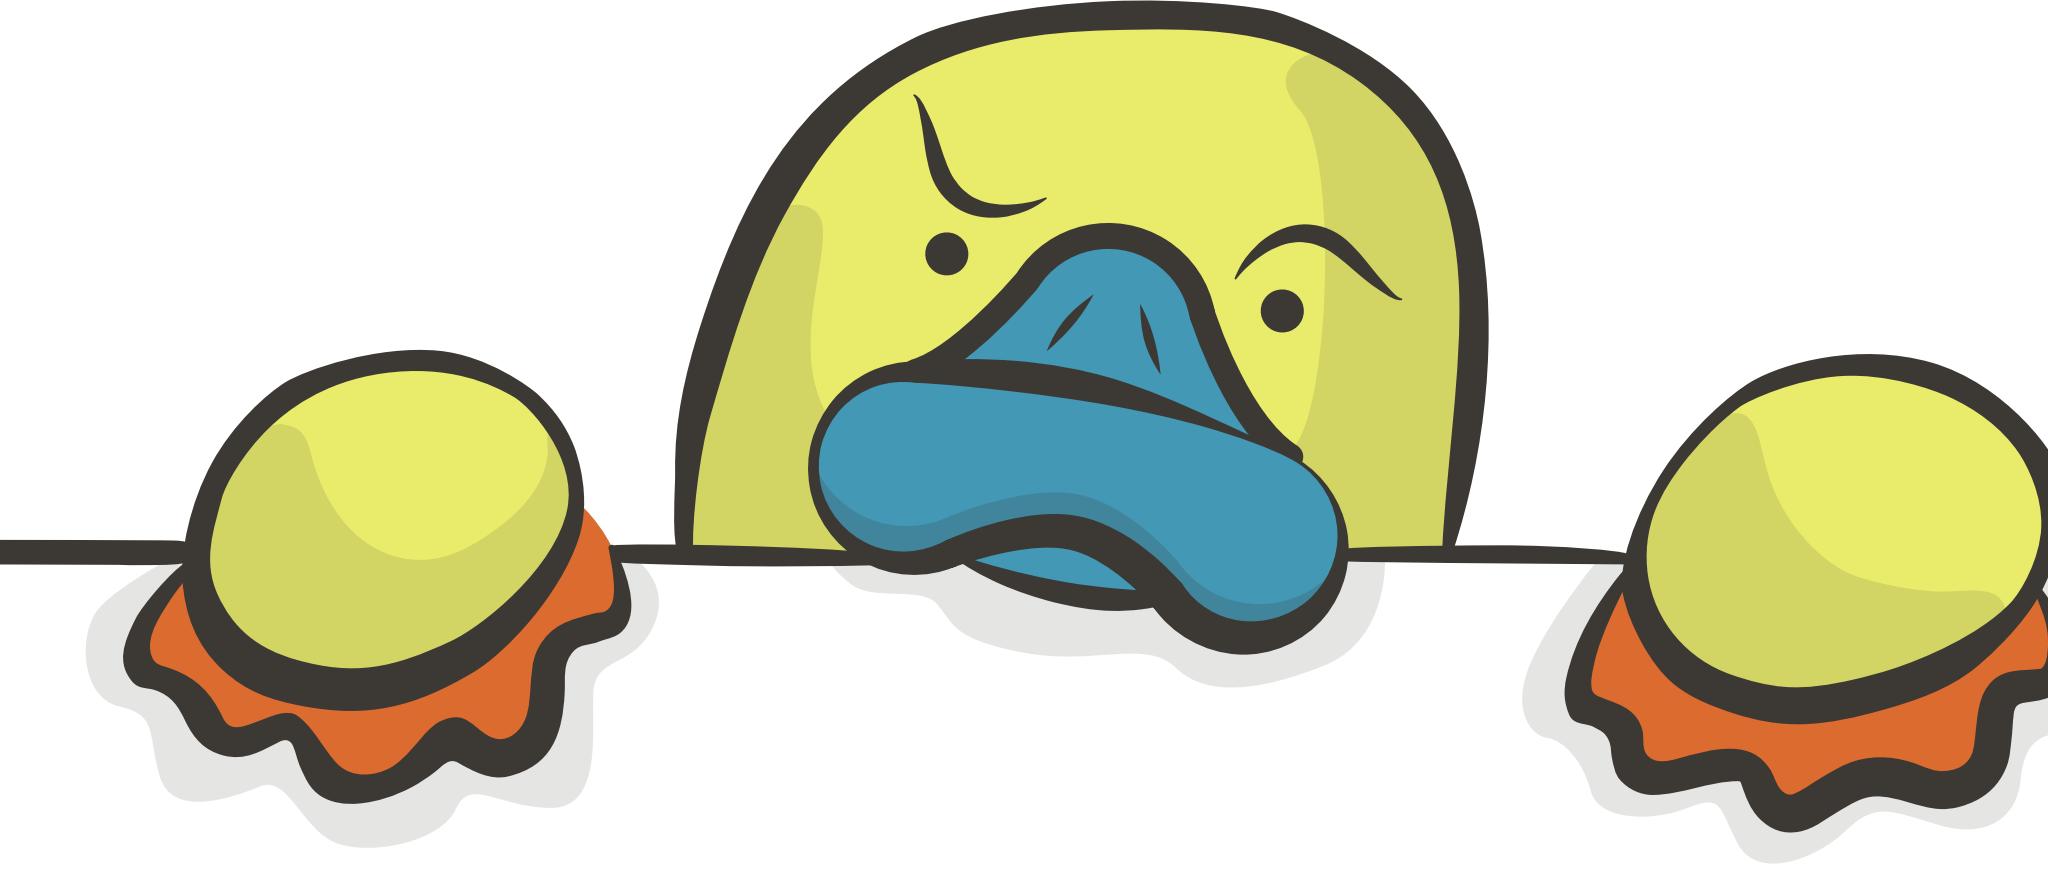

@QuinnyPig

LastWeekInAWS.com

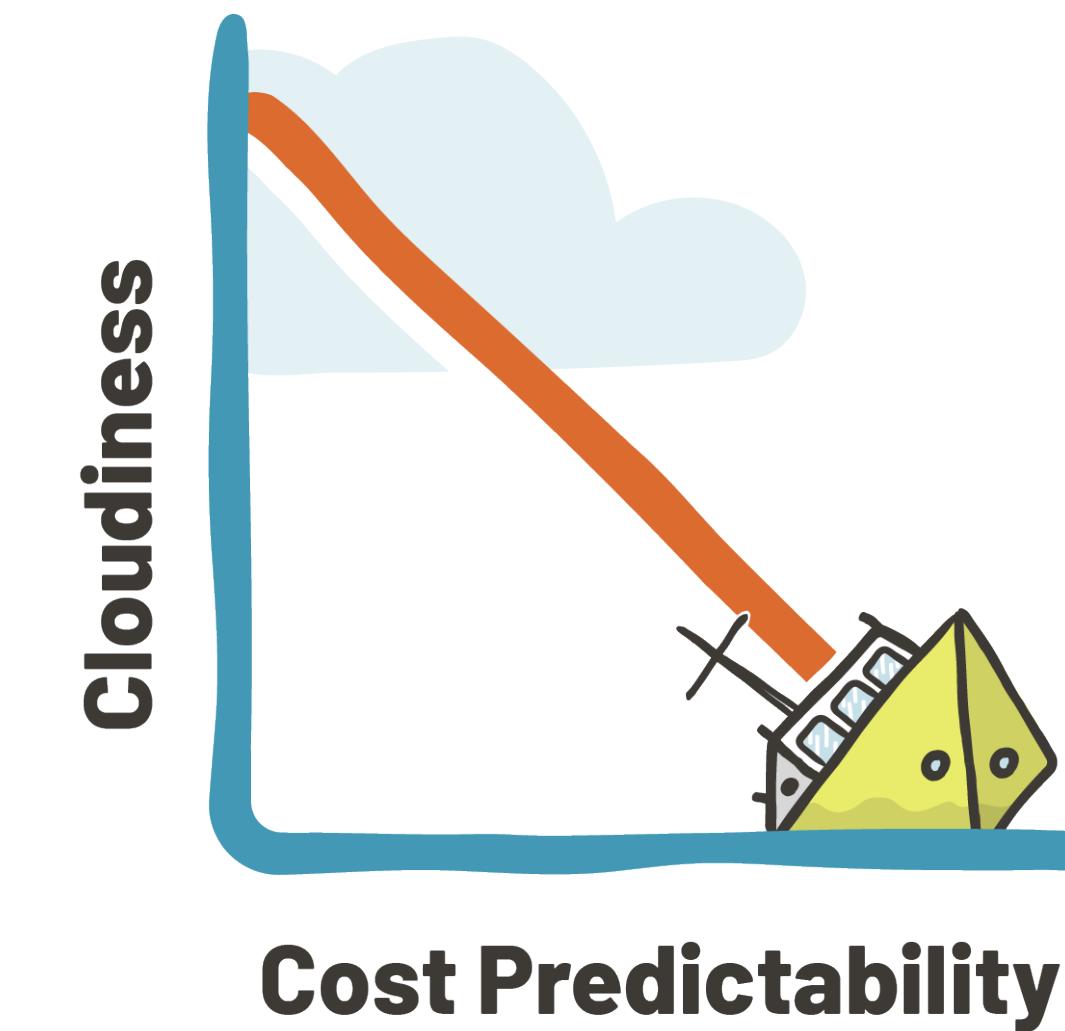

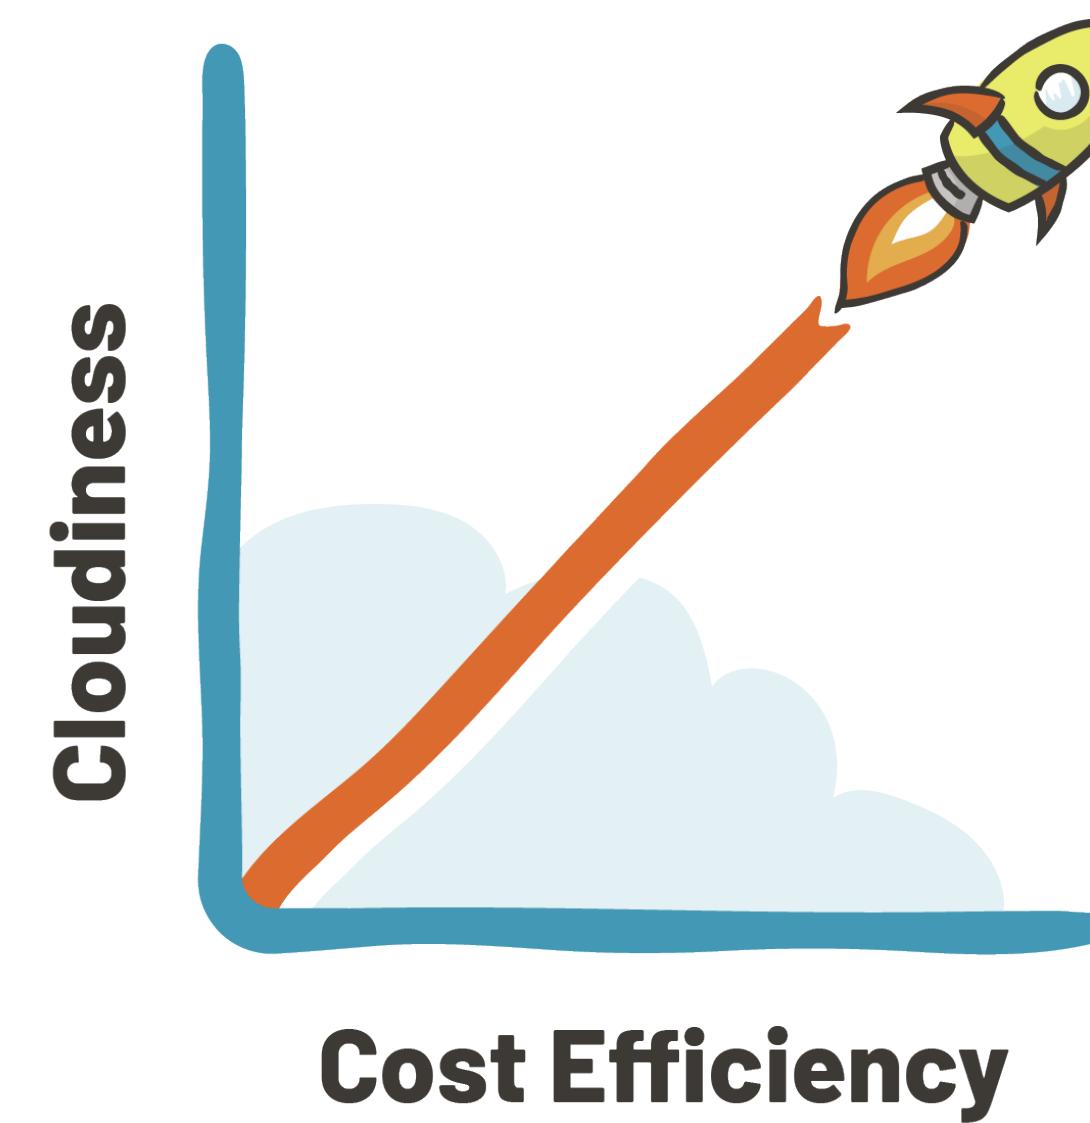

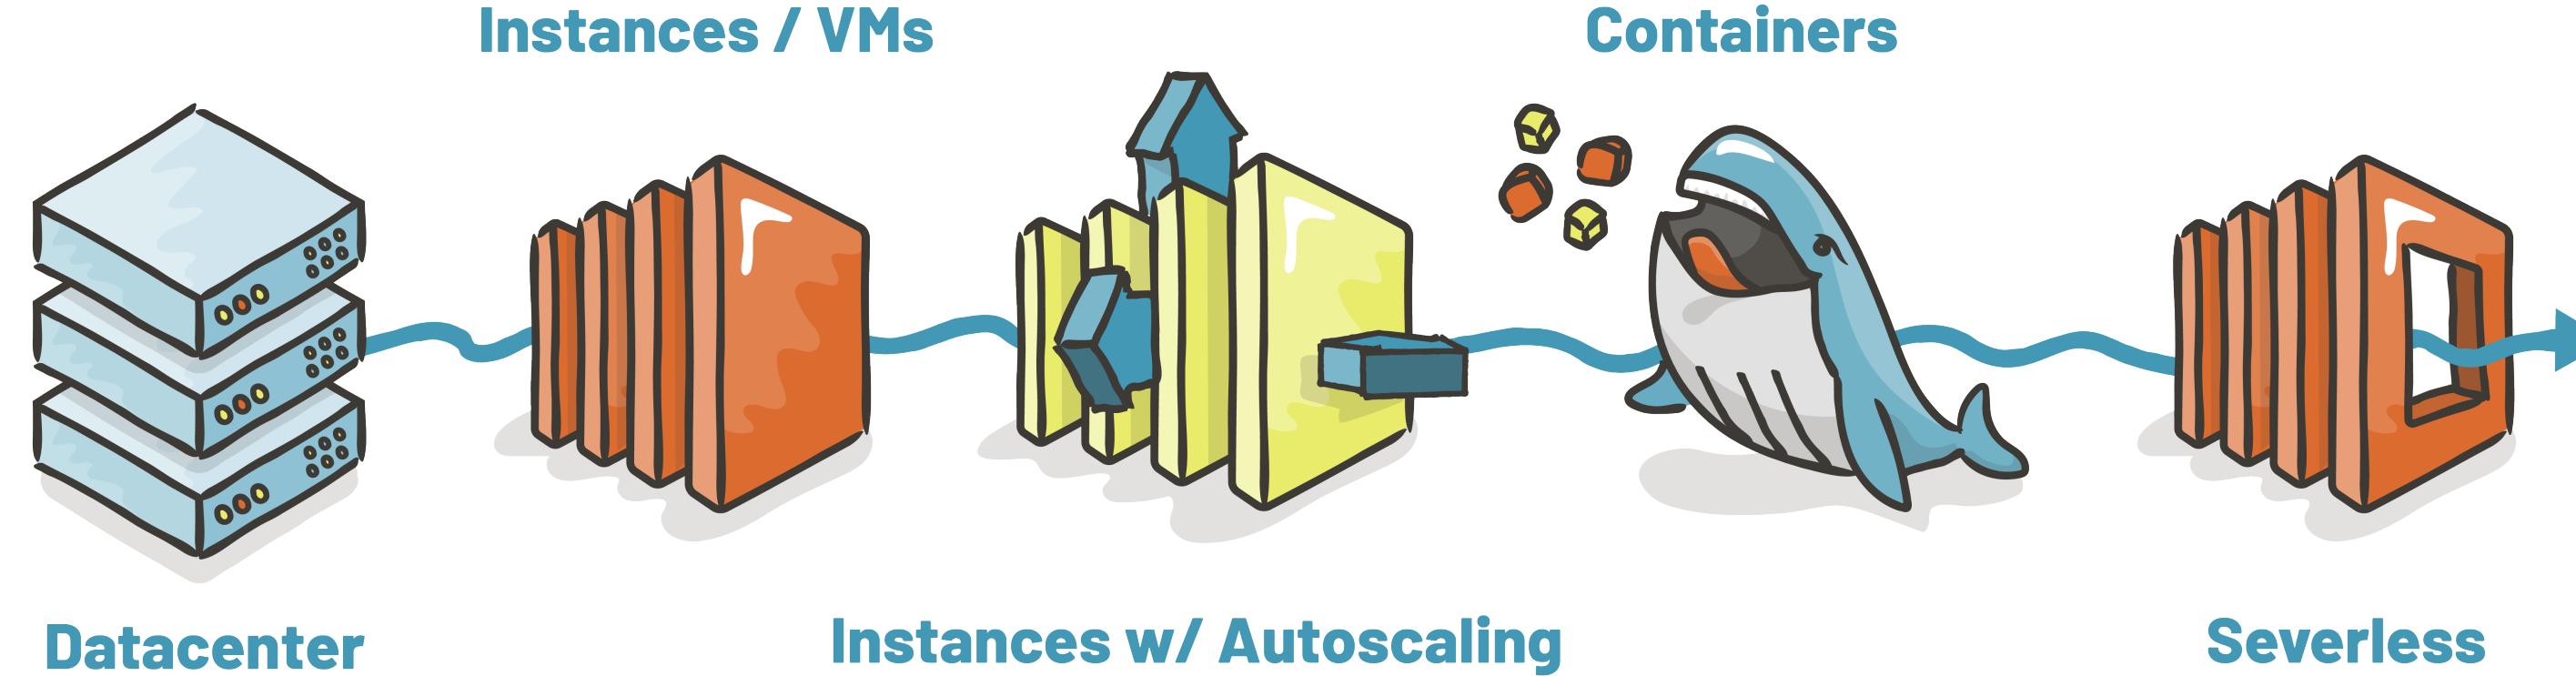

2. Amazon Releasing a Service Doesn't Mean it's Ready

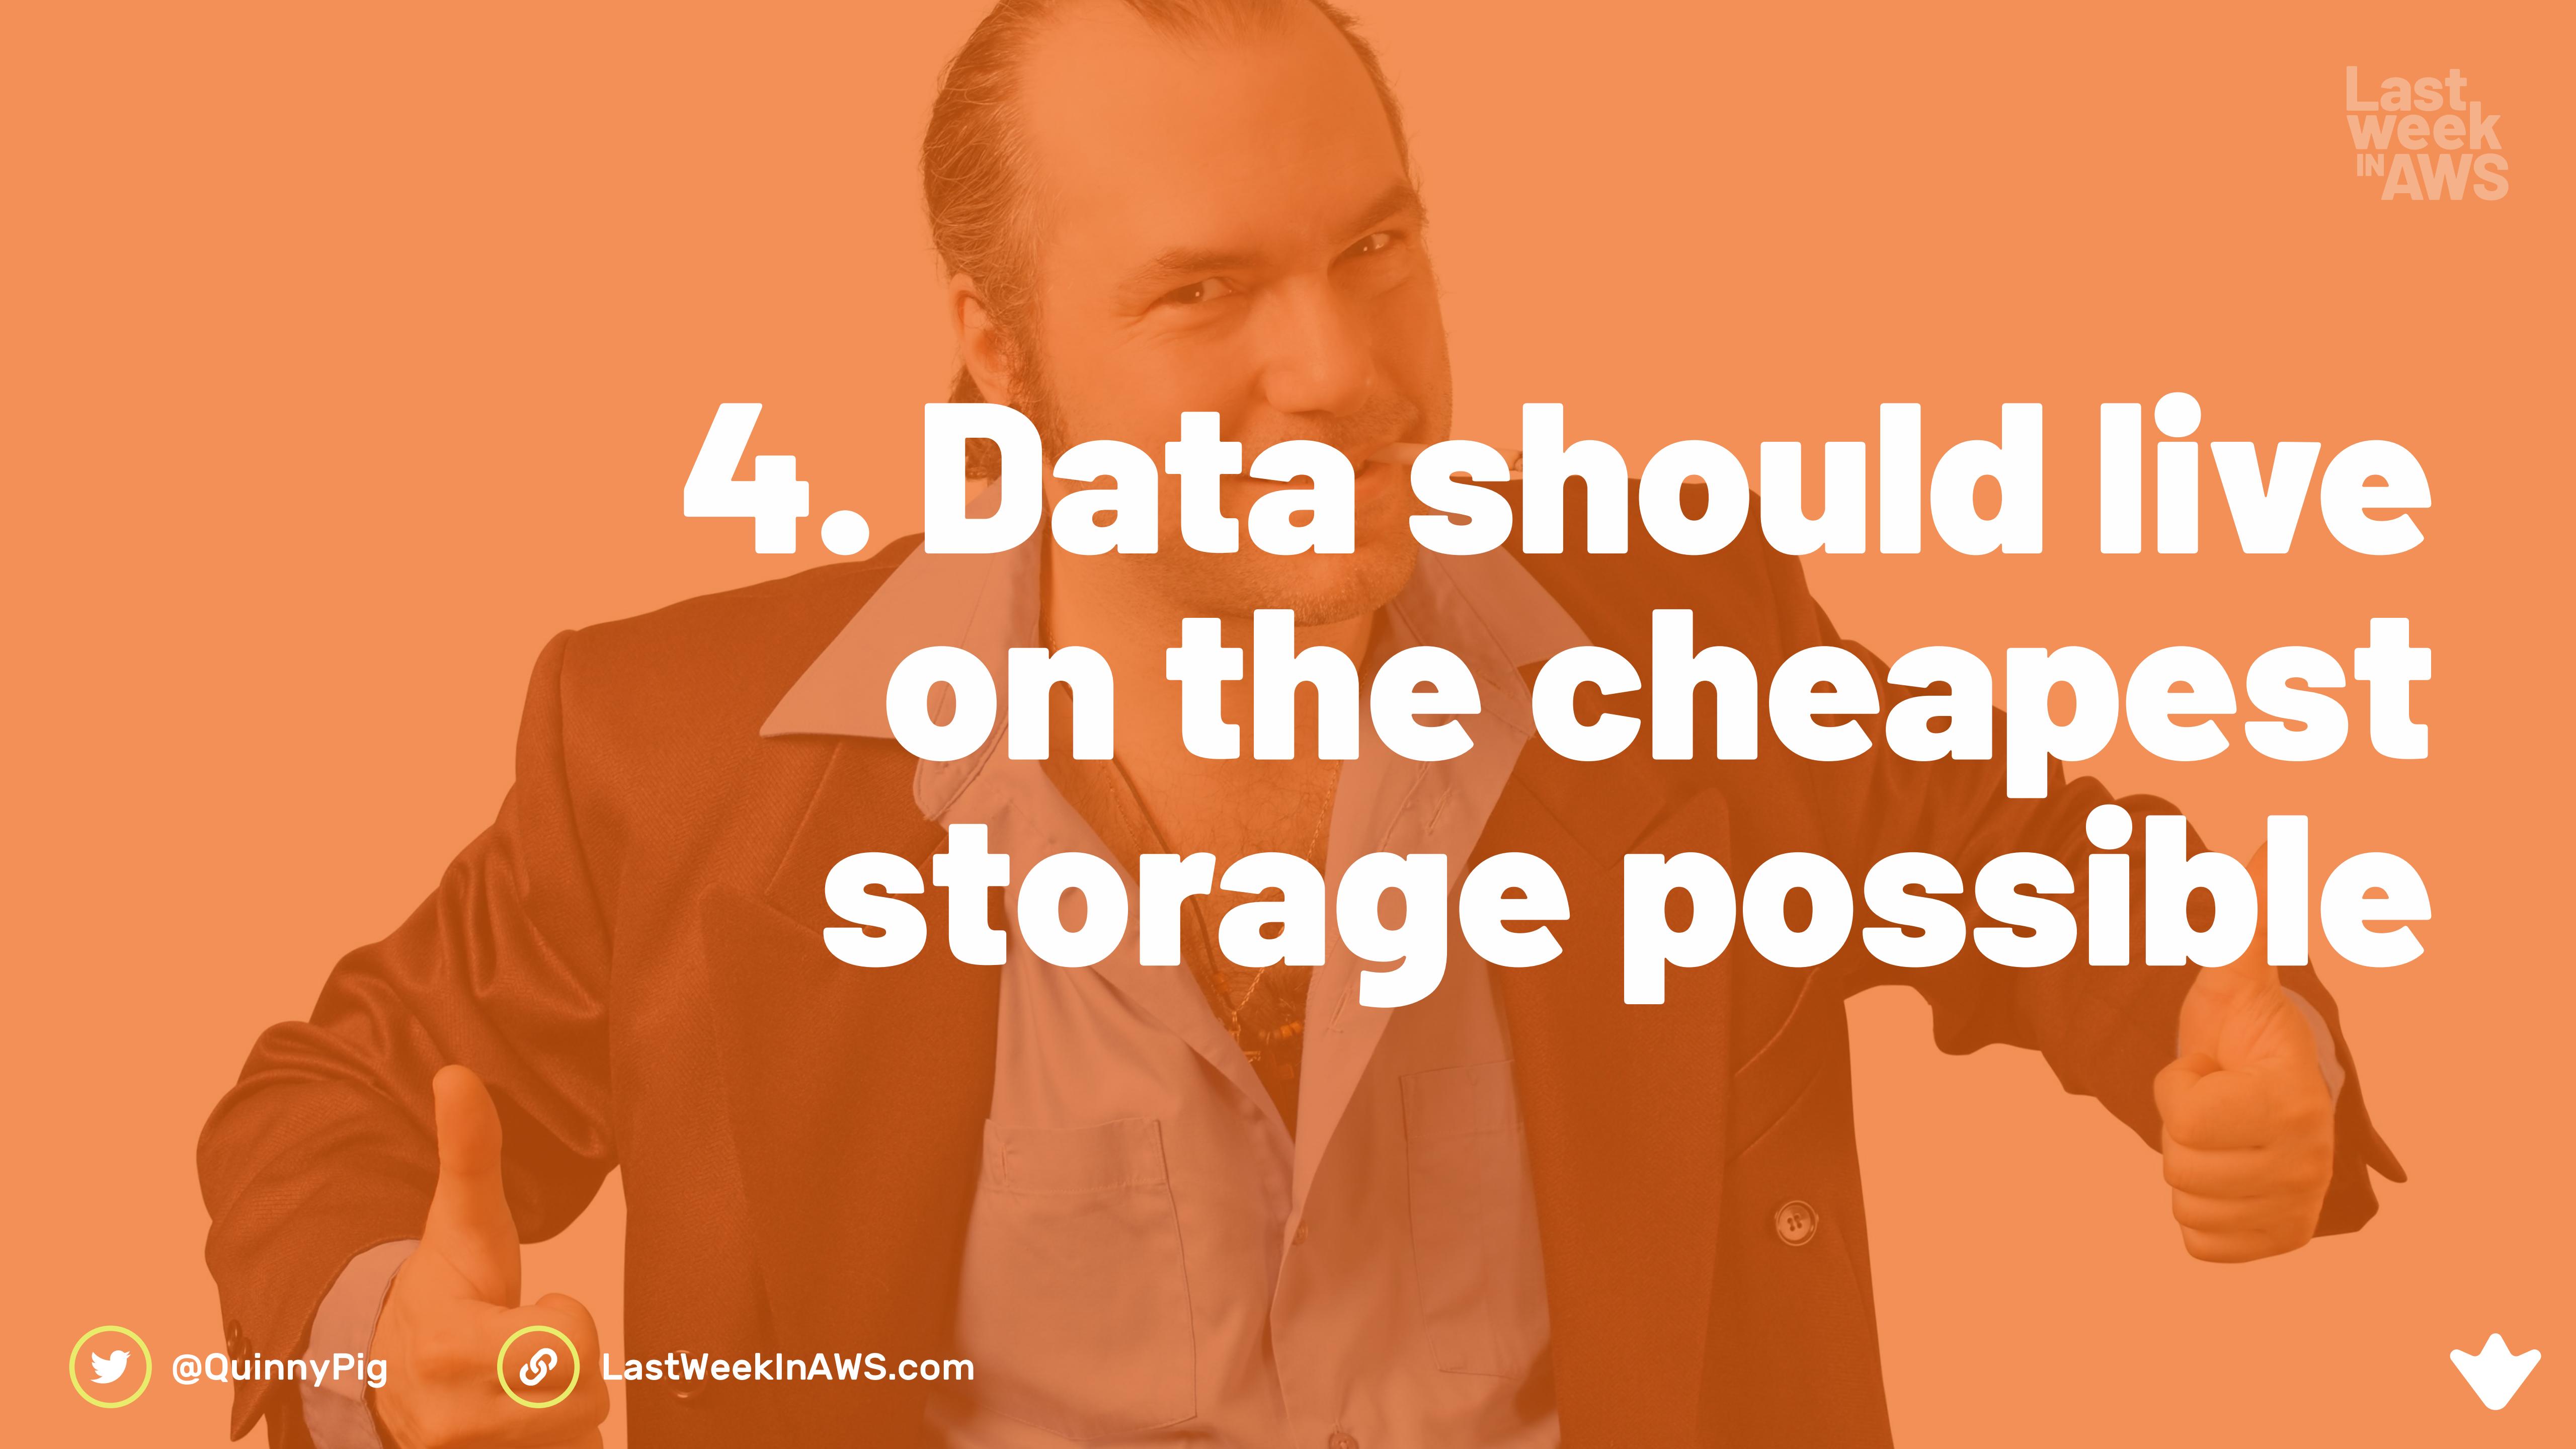

A person wearing a light blue shirt and a dark cap is spraying a powerful stream of water from a fire hydrant. The water is spraying upwards and to the left, creating a misty spray. The hydrant is a standard black outdoor model.

3. Moving data around over and over and over and...

4. Data should live on the cheapest storage possible

@QuinnyPig

LastWeekInAWS.com

5. Chasing the Multi-Cloud Dragon

6. Analysis Paralysis, Financial Edition

@QuinnyPig

LastWeekInAWS.com

7. Trying to Predict Spend to Within 10%

@QuinnyPig

LastWeekInAWS.com

8. One Big Number, Many Different Business Units

9. Underestimating the Power of Prediction

@QuinnyPig

LastWeekInAWS.com

10. Getting stuck in datacenter thinking.

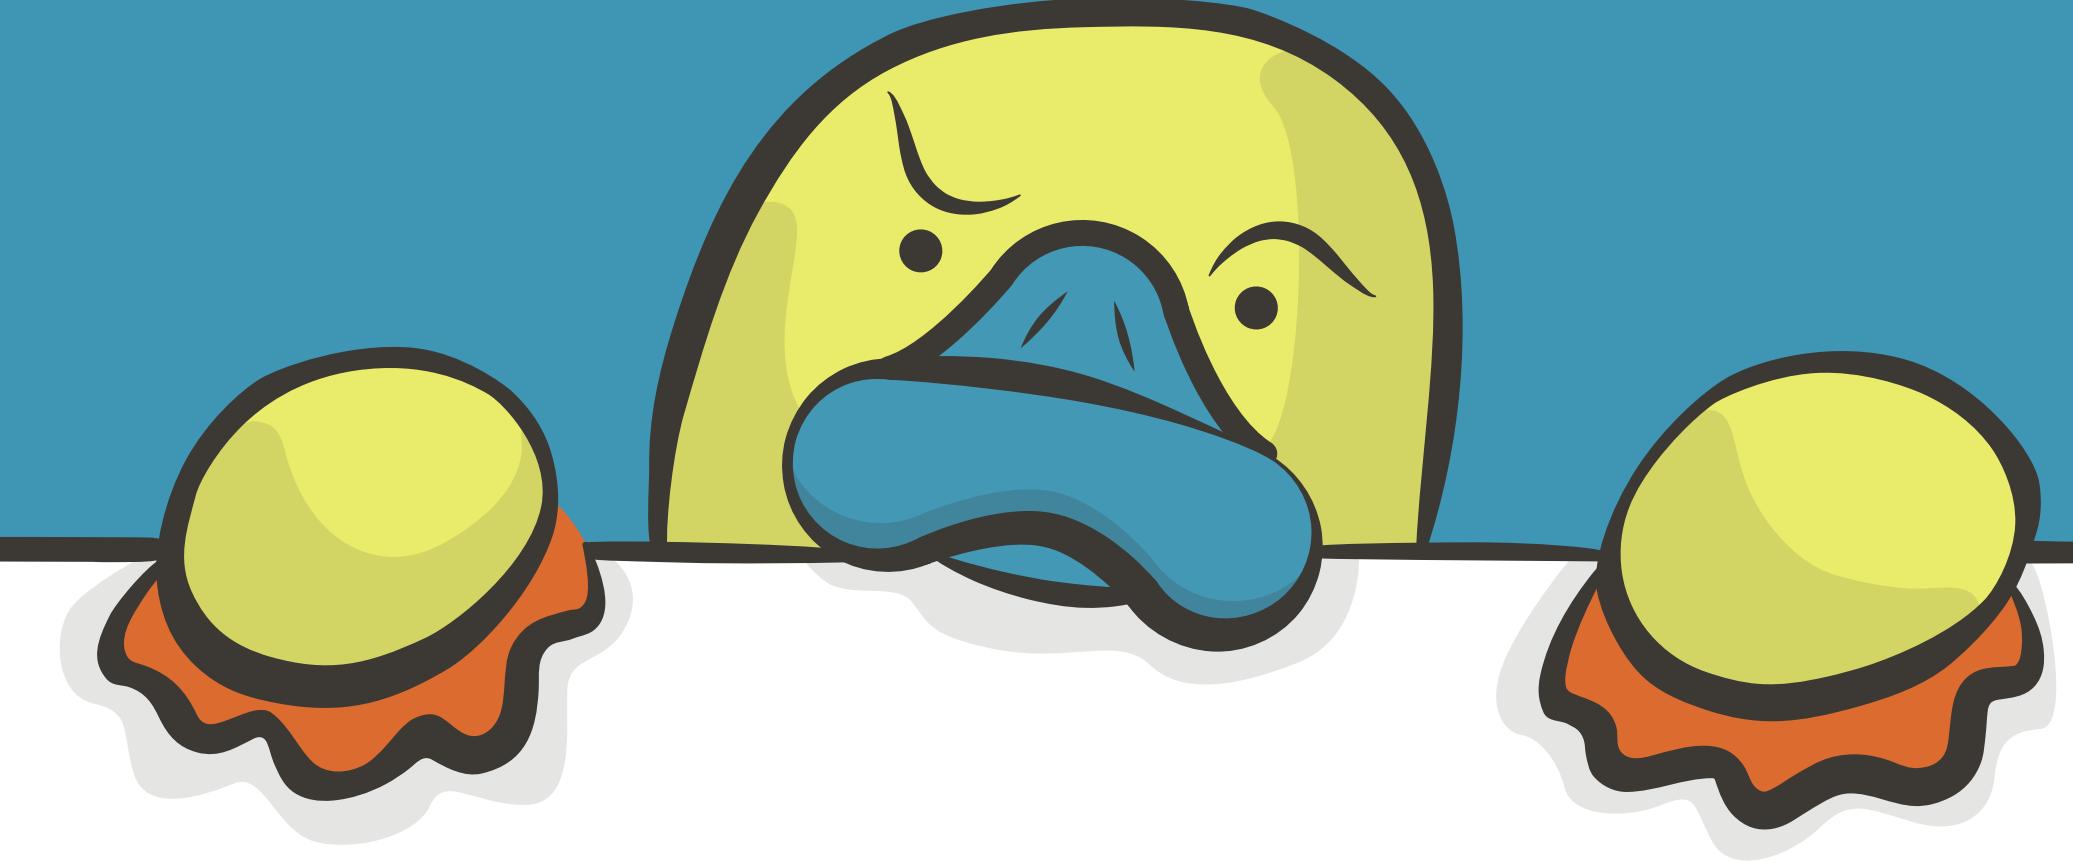

@QuinnyPig

LastWeekInAWS.com

lastweekinaws.com/does

